Cotham School policy statement on Equality and Community Cohesion

The Public Sector Equality Duty (PSED) and Equality Objectives for Cotham School. What is the PSED?

The Equality Act 2010 introduced a single, general duty for public bodies, including schools, and which extends to all 'protected characteristics' – race, disability, sex, age, religion or belief, sexual orientation, pregnancy and maternity and gender reassignment.

There are three main elements within the act and in carrying out our functions, as a school, we must have regard to the need to:

1. Eliminate discrimination and other conduct prohibited by the act.
2. Advance equality of opportunity between people who share a protected characteristic and people who do not share it.
3. Foster good relations across all characteristics – between people who share a protected characteristic and people who do not share it.

The PSED replaces the previous three sets of separate duties to promote disability, race and gender equality.

All schools must have 'due regard' to the three elements. Therefore whenever significant decisions are being made, or policies being developed or reviewed, the school will consider carefully the equalities implications.

How does Cotham School comply with the PSED?

Introduction:

Cotham School welcomes diversity and the positive benefits this brings to the life of the school. We recognise that the varied backgrounds of students and other people in the school community are an asset to the school.

We wish to make all of the school's opportunities and facilities accessible to every student, and protect everyone in the school from harassment and intimidation. We aim to make sure that no-one experiences harassment, less favourable treatment or discrimination because of their age; any disability they may have; their ethnicity, colour or national origin; their gender; their gender identity or reassignment; their marital or civil partnership status; being pregnant or having recently had a baby; their religion or beliefs; their sexual identity and orientation.

The governor's support and fund the measures outlined in the policy to support the necessary activities and strategies to make this policy a reality. The school's leadership team will review existing policies, strategies and training to ensure that the policy is being implemented throughout the life of the school.

The Learning and Well-being Committee is responsible for monitoring the school's compliance with the policy. The Learning and Well-being Committee will provide an annual report to the full governing body on the school's progress with the implementation of the policy.

Our Inclusion Team makes a significant contribution to promoting equal opportunities and directly intervenes to actively promote equal opportunities. The creation of a post that directly teaches and supports EAL learners has contributed significantly to their learning and well-being. However, the school is far from complacent and remains focused upon ensuring that its response to the PSED is significant and effective. There have been further appointments in literacy and numeracy to ensure that all students are able to meet expected standards and to close the gap in attainment between different groups of students.

Religion and Belief

As a multi-faith school, we present all religions as having equal value and do not seek to promote one religion as more or less valid as the others. However, as a multi-faith school, we recognise that people of religion and belief may experience discrimination and harassment.

Gender identity or reassignment

We do not collect data on students who are planning to undergo, who are undergoing or who have undergone gender reassignment. However, we recognise that people who are proposing to undergo, who are undergoing or who have undergone a process to reassign their gender may experience discrimination and harassment.

Sexual orientation

We do not collect data on the sexual orientation of our students. However, as a school we are aware that there may be a number of equality issues for gay, lesbian and bisexual students and we provide support to all students identifying as LGBTQ+.

Part 2. Eliminate discrimination

Cotham School is a large, complex organisation with a mixed, diverse, multi-faith, multi-ethnic student population. Close tracking of all student outcomes takes place in a structured, systematic way and where it reveals underachievement, low attainment or concerns about specific groups or individuals the school intervenes.

Monitoring and evaluation and the analysis of data takes place across the school and is used within the improvement cycle at each key stage. Monitoring takes place three times a year and positive action taken to rectify any disadvantages that are revealed. Examination results published in August lead to judgements for key areas of improvement and development. At Post-16 following on from examination results a prioritised action plan is set in motion for the next academic year. We monitor the attainment and progress of all our students, and use gender in the data analysis process. To address underachievement, we look at the performance of each gender and report on the group's achievement: neither boys nor girls are treated as homogeneous groups,

We have an Anti-Bullying Policy and deal promptly and effectively with all incidents and complaints of bullying and harassment that may include cyber-bullying and prejudice-based bullying related to disability or special educational need, ethnicity and race, gender, gender reassignment, pregnancy or maternity, religion and belief and sexual orientation. We keep a record of all such incidents and notify those affected of what action we have taken. We provide training to all staff in relation to dealing with bullying and harassment incidents.

Tackling bullying or harassment on the basis of race, ethnicity and culture is achieved by ensuring all incidents of this nature are logged and investigated fully. Appropriate sanctions are put in place and then parents are involved to ensure they are aware of the nature such incidents. Reconciliation happens between the parties involved so that the unacceptable nature of such incidents is made clear and incidents are suitably resolved.

Our Staffing Policies – cover the school's employees (permanent, temporary, casual, part time and those on fixed term contracts), job applicants and to individuals such as agency staff and consultants and volunteers who are employees but who work at the school. We observe and implement the principles of equal opportunities and non-discrimination in our employment practices.

Our Accessibility Plan increases the extent to which all students can participate in the curriculum, improves the physical environment of the school and increases the availability of accessible information to disabled students.

We have a Special Educational Needs and Disabilities Policy that outlines the provision the school makes for students with special educational needs. We work endeavour to offer all students access to the national curriculum, to teach and to assessment that is appropriate to their aptitude, attainment and any special need they might have. The policy was devised in light of the revised Code of Practice for the Identification and Assessment of Special Educational Needs (DFE 1994, Revised 2001 and 2014).

The School has an Online Safety Policy that takes all online safety issues very seriously. Through assemblies, ICT days and lessons, students and staff are made aware of suitable internet conduct. Subsequently, "Acceptable – Use" policies are regularly signed and adhered to by all students and staff.

At Post 16 learning support for students is through our academic mentors who support students' access to learning. We maintain strong links with external agencies to ensure the provision of appropriate and effective support for students with disabilities and/or learning difficulties. To monitor further underachievement of students, we have also created "Up-Grade" a system whereby students are supported with independent learning. This is also a way of supporting the access of students to a range of cultural capital. Close tracking of behaviour data shows some reduction in sanctions for PP and BAME students.

The school positively encourages students into non-traditional areas of study and work to minimise gender stereotyping.

Part 3. Working to become an anti-racist organisation

Bristol is a city marked by vast socio-economic inequality and despite being considered a prosperous city, with an above average educational system, Bristol has more areas categorised as being in the most deprived 10% in England compared to other cities in the country. Bristol also shoulders a very specific legacy in the context of colonial history including the slave trade as well as the Civil Rights Activism of the 1960s.

When looking at the data across the city of Bristol and indeed across the country, it outlines that BAME students are underperforming compared with their peers and there is a larger percentage of BAME students who are permanently excluded. While there are going to be external factors, beyond the school's control, that contribute to this disparity, we are committed to tackling any internal factors that may also be contributing to the lower levels of attainment amongst our BAME students.

Combined with this, Bristol is facing wider challenges that expose our young people to greater levels of aggression, violence and disorder, more often than not as a result of growing tensions between different groups in the wake of events such as Brexit. Bristol also holds a proud 'Exist to Resist' identifier and this has been evidenced by the large numbers of Bristolians joining activist groups such as Extinction Rebellion and others. Cotham's diversity is our greatest gift and we are passionate to put in the hard work to tackle unconscious bias and continue our journey to being an anti racist school. We are working towards this in a number of ways:

1. Addressing Unconscious Bias and how to be Anti-Racist through regular staff training
2. Creating a Social Justice Library for staff and students
3. The work of the school's BAME Strategy Group, made up of a cross-section of staff, students and interested parents
4. Ongoing work on decolonising the curriculum in conjunction with the One Bristol Curriculum project
5. Introducing Restorative Approaches to behaviour
6. Taking a clear position and response to #BLM
7. Committing towards achieving the Anti-Racist School Award with Carnegie School of Education at Leeds Beckett University
8. The senior leadership team undertaking an 18-month programme on Race, Identity and School Leadership with Integrity Coaching

9. Working with a range of other organisations committed to race equality e.g. TALO, SARI, ZAZI, BAMEed, Integrate, the BAME South West Leaders Network, BCC, Youth Resilience Network UK.

Part 4. Advance equality of opportunity

The school is committed to advancing equality of opportunity between people who share a protected characteristic and people who do not share it and has put a range of approaches in place to ensure that this happens.

The school identifies individual students who need sustained support and guidance to overcome barriers, achieve their potential and to make effective transitions. The school ensures they have the help they need and makes referrals to other support services as appropriate. This was a particular strength of the school, with students identified early via the “inclusion forum”, a group of key staff supporting 1-1 guidance by the CEIAG advisor. A range of strategies are then planned to overcome student barriers, including extended work experience, early college placements and escorted tasters.

School regularly reviews transition issues with support services and external CEIAG provider and makes plans for improvements. The Post 16 SEND, Careers and Wellbeing Lead meets with appropriate FE staff during the autumn term to review the success of student transitions and to discuss improvements.

The school monitors and evaluates, frequently and regularly, the attainment and progress of all students and looks at the performance of particular groups who share a protected characteristic to compare their performance with those who do not share it. Interventions are then planned and implemented in order to close any disparities in performance.

We have a vibrant and well-represented student voice that ensures that students have a direct voice to discuss matters that relate to their concerns and overall wellbeing in school and immediate environment. The House System is strong and articulate, contributing to whole school decision making with students.

We have our own in-house chef who recognises a culturally diverse cuisine and ensures that all students receive a healthy meal each day. This reflects our commitment to healthy lifestyle and responsibility to our environment regardless of one’s socio-economic background.

We understand that attendance plays an integral part in a student's achievement at school. Thus, through our Attendance and Punctuality Policy, we investigate any discrepancies that may occur and address inequalities appropriately.

Some practical examples of the school putting equality of opportunity into practice are:

The school operates attendance competitions within year groups and any religious observance days that have been taken by students are discounted in order that all students have the opportunity to gain a prize.

Every year, students in Year 7 attend a residential, outdoor activities experience at camp. The date of the camp is chosen carefully to avoid taking place during Ramadan. A prayer room was set up at student request. Students not attending camp benefit from an excellent menu of alternative enrichment, trips and visits during this time.

A student-led group for students identifying as LGBTQ+ is well-established and leads the way in raising awareness of LGBTQ+ issues. Students who identify as non-gender, transgender or questioning are well-supported by the Inclusion team and, where parental agreement has been given, a student will be referred to by their preferred gender and name.

Part 5. Foster good relations across all characteristics

It is worthy of note, that in April 2018, Ofsted commented on the school's inclusivity and commitment to promote equality of opportunity for all.

“Since her appointment, the headteacher has acted with great purpose to address the changing needs of the school. The school is responding well to the changing social context of the community which the school serves. The headteacher’s vision and her focus on meeting the needs of all pupils have been at the heart of the school’s transformation.”

“Governors and school leaders have a strong commitment to serving the needs of their diverse community. They are determined to make sure that the needs of all their pupils are met so that all can maximise their potential.”¹

“Pupils treat each other well. Relationships are generally good-humoured and positive. Pupils report that while bullying does sometimes occur, it is dealt with well by staff. Pupils are tolerant of those from other backgrounds or with other beliefs. They are adamant that there is no place for racism or homophobia in their school.”

“Pupils who have SEN and/or disabilities receive the support they require to make good progress.”

“The leadership of pupil premium is good. Pupils who need support are identified and appropriate help is put in place for them. Their progress is monitored and teachers and teaching assistants intervene if required. A significant proportion of disadvantaged pupils also speak English as an additional language. Leaders have ensured that these pupils are well supported by a knowledgeable and committed team. As a result of their work, these pupils are overcoming the barriers they face and are able to thrive in school”

“Relationships between staff and pupils are good. Pupils are respectful when talking with adults and courteous to visitors.”

“Leaders have established a good programme of careers education throughout the school. They are aware that some pupils do not have high aspirations and they have put in place a comprehensive programme to raise pupils’ expectations of themselves. As a result of this package, an increasing number of pupils from disadvantaged backgrounds and those who speak English as an additional language are setting their sights high and moving on to top universities.”

The school adopts a wide range of approaches to foster good relations across all characteristics. Some specific examples are as follows:

The range of topics covered by the Religion, Ethics & Philosophy (REP) curriculum which aims to provide students with the opportunity to gain in-depth knowledge and understanding of the principles and philosophies in Britain today. REP provides a framework within which students can reflect upon their own beliefs and attitudes.

Our performing arts team take students on dance tours to broaden their experience. The physical education team organise a large number of team events with other schools and uses older students to lead and develop younger students.

The school curriculum plays a significant part in our approach to fostering good relations and Personal, Social, Citizenship and Health Education, in particular, focuses upon the promotion of caring and considerate relationships. Promoting British Values of tolerance, individual liberty, mutual respect, democracy and the rule of law.

This work is complemented by that in the tutor taught programme and work in the Humanities and English curricula.

Curriculum teams audit their materials to both ensure balance and appropriateness of content and to promote and celebrate diversity and difference.

The Designated Safeguarding Lead and BAME Learning Mentor provide a re-education workshop following any incident of a racist nature which, to date, has not resulted in any repeat offences by a student.

Part 6: Our equality objectives

The Equality Act 2010 requires us to publish specific and measurable equality objectives. Our equality objectives are based on our analysis of data and other information.

Our equality objectives focus on those areas where we have agreed to take action to improve equality and tackle disadvantages.

We will regularly review the progress we are making to meet our equality objectives.
